Gay Season Predicted

THE status of society this season presents a decided but extremely interesting paradox. This half of the world, while in thorough sympathy with the other half, which is plunged in war, must amuse and entertain itself. Nothing more to the point touches the present situation than the clever French adage, Il faut qu'on amuse.

As a matter of fact, despite all the dire prophecies of the spoil sports, the stage is already being charmingly set for the current season, and when the curtain goes up the "prophecies of evil" will see that Washington is holding its own brilliantly, but with due regard to the condition of society's friends beyond the Atlantic.

From visible appearances it seems that with the proper limitations social gaiety will not be abated by the money market and the war and the other considerations which apparently are affecting other centers of the country. One who knows them cannot go abroad just now anywhere in Washington without noting the hosts of interesting people who constitute society and who make it interesting, who haunt the shops and the theaters even at this early period of the social season. That is a sign and a token just as eloquent as the changing colors in the autumn leaves that the city is fast filling up with its long absent wanderers abroad and that the play is about to begin.

Of course, all the butterflies did not alight for long in Washington. Scores of them have fluttered away to White Sulphur Springs and the Hot Springs or to the mountains. This is the contingent that is sharpening its esthetic appetite for the season at its crest, with sports in the country, with the hounds and the horses and golf and tennis. Above all quiet preparation is going on of "plans of campaign." Everything nowadays is written in the language of the battlefield. The greater portion, the people who make Washington what it is, the gayest and the loveliest winter capital of the world, have come back to stay. There will be no "fall visit to Europe" this season and, after all, the fall in Washington is very beautiful. We should judge so at least as we notice many of the handsomest homes are now open which have been shuttered and closed for years. There is no place like Washington, when Washington is your home.

The ever-recurring question of "the social leader of Washington" is with us again in all its hackneyed elusiveness. To tell the truth, there is not nor never can be one woman who alone holds supreme sway over the social pulse of the Capital. There are a half a dozen leaders. We are too cosmopolitan here, there are too many Old World social queens in the corps, too many matrons and belles who have been feted and honored all over the country and Europe to allow one supreme leader over them all. In fact the pleasantest feature of Washington is that there is so little rivalry. Guests enjoy the entertainment planned for them by their hostess, and the hostess in turn goes to their parties and enjoys herself.

While much of next month and December will be devoted to debutantes and brides, the young men of the various families have had their hour this month, especially during the last week. Mr. Humphrey Redfield, son of Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Redfield, has been renewing acquaintances here. A group of ten or twelve midshipmen entered into the fun provided for them last week with an added zest when they remembered that they must soon return to their lessons. Capt. and Mrs. A. F. Fletcher, who are very proud of their good-looking midshipman son, William Morrow Fletcher, who is named after his grandfather, the distinguished San Francisco jurist, entertained his classmates at a dance on Thursday night. The midshipmen took possession of the Army and Navy Club on Thursday night, and the older sailors and warriors joined in the dancing and the fun generally. The embryo admirals were also included in a number of the informal dinners given at the Chevy Chase Club Wednesday and Saturday nights.

The new Italian Ambassador, Count Marchi di Cellere, and Countess Cellere and their two children will arrive in New York today and will come direct to Washington. The Embassy will not be established in the residence built by Mrs. Phoebe Hearst in New Hampshire avenue, which it occupied for a number of years, but Count Cellere has taken the handsome residence of the American Ambassador to Italy and Mrs. Thomas Nelson Page. Count and Countess di Cellere will be welcome additions to Washington's social set, as they were noted for the lavishness of their entertainments in Rome and their charm of manner.

The Congressional and official circles are on the qui vive, waiting for the adjournment of Congress, which is advanced every day. Many of them are just waiting for this to go back to their home and on trips. Senator and Mrs. Shields, of Tennessee, who are enthusiastic automobilists, will make the trip to their home by motor.

Mrs. William Gibbs McAdoo has indorsed the plan to make cotton more popular and thus aid the stricken cotton industry of the country. This plan was first thought of by Miss Genevieve Clark, daughter of the Speaker, and the idea has spread rapidly through the country, especially in Washington, where many of the official and society women are busily making their own gowns for the Cotton Fashion Show, to be held at the New Willard October 7 and 8.

The diplomats are all trying to be cheerful and keep cool, but they are alert for the slightest bit of news from the front. Their duties have trebled, and the women of the embassies and legations are all active in Red Cross work. Mme. Haveluth, wife of the Belgian Minister, came down from the gayeties of the fashionable resorts some weeks ago and has spent a greater part of each day at her desk making lists and writing letters, and has been a material aid in the forming of the committee of the Belgian Legation which is raising funds to aid the stricken Belgians.

Secretary of War Garrison has returned to Washington from New York. Mrs. Garrison, who went up to New York from their country place in New Jersey to meet him, has returned there. She will not come to Washington for some time yet.

Mr. Max Behrend of Philadelphia spent a few days in town, the guest of friends.

The Counselor of the French Embassy and Madame Clauseau sailed for France from New York yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hollander of Baltimore have returned to their home after a short time spent in town, the guests of Miss Marguerite Kaufman.

The Spanish Ambassador and Madame Diana will leave Newport for New York tomorrow, and it is expected that they will come to Washington some time this week.

Mrs. William Haywood was among those entertaining guests at dinner at the Chevy Chase Club last night.

Miss Doris Hayward, who has been the guest of Mrs. Chester Barnett, at Elkins, W. Va., has returned to Washington, and will go back to Elkins some time next week. Mrs. Barnett is also in Washington for a few days.

Mrs. Isadore Grosner and daughter, Ruth, have returned to their home, Massachusetts avenue, after a four month's stay in their cottage at Atlantic City.

Mr. and Mrs. Melville Ingalls and Miss Gladys Ingalls, who are making a tour of the New England States by motor, have arrived at Waterbury, Conn.

Mr. and Mrs. Edson Bradley, who have been detained in Europe on account of the war, arrived in New York on Friday. It is expected they will open their residence on Dupont Circle for a part of the season at least.

Mr. David Adler, of Tenth street, left during the week to attend school at the University of Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Calderon Carlisle, who has spent the summer in Europe, is expected in Washington soon from New York, where she arrived on the Mauretania Friday.

Mr. Sol Breslau has returned to his home in the city from a short visit to relatives in Baltimore.

Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, U. S. A., commanding the Department of the East, was the principal guest at dinner last night of Col. Oliver B. Briseman, N. G. N. Y., president of the Army and Navy Club, preceding a reception for Gen. Wood, given at the club, in commemoration of its twenty-fifth anniversary.

Other guests at the dinner were the governors of the club, Commodore Moses L. Wood, U. S. N., retired; Lieut. Col. J. J. Byrne, N. G. N. Y.; Lieut. Col. A. L. Smith, U. S. A.; Lieut. Col. M. D. Martin, U. S. A.; Maj. William Wiegell, U. S. A.; Maj. William Tyson Romane, U. S. A.; Maj. Edwin W. Dayton, N. G. N. Y.; Maj. Henry C. Wilson, U. S. V.; Maj. Edward R. Maloney, N. G. N. Y.; Capt. Henry F. Quackenbush, Medical Reserve Corps, U. S. A.; Capt. William C. Tremaine, U. S. A.; Capt. H. Dorey, U. S. A.; Capt. Frank McCoy, U. S. A.; Capt. W. L. Cole, N. G. N. Y.; Commander B. F. Hutchison, U. S. N.; Lieut. Commander Roland R. Riggs, U. S. N.; and Lieut. Robert C. Lawrence, late N. G. N. Y.

The wedding of Miss Marion Long and Lieut. Charles K. Nulsen, Sixteenth U. S. Londahl, of the Thirtieth Infantry, officiated in the presence of about thirty of the most intimate friends and relatives of both families. Pink hydrangeas and pink tiger lilies banded with white and gold altar improved in the drawing-room. Potted palms and ferns added a deft touch of green to the pink and white color scheme. The bride wore a gown of white chiffon over white satin. Her skirt was ruffled in rose point lace, and the waist was of the chiffon, with touches of the lace. The demitrain was of the chiffon and satin. The tulle veil was caught in the hair with tiny bunches of orange blossoms. The bridal bouquet was a shower of evocative and lilies of the valley. The bride was unattended and was given into the keeping of her husband by Frederick Spencer Palmer. The groom was attended by Lieut. Lester Baker, U. S. A. After the ceremony a wedding repast was served. The bridal table was decorated in gilt baskets filled with pink tiger lilies and maidenhair ferns with streamers and bows of pink tulle.
